

Hoover Sure GOP has Chance in 1936; Wants Mills to Head Ticket

WASHINGTON—There was one private political confab held by Herbert Hoover during his recent "swing around the circle" that escaped public notice. It occurred in Philadelphia.

Shipping unnoticed by automobile into the Quaker City, the former President called on his old friend Joseph Wayne, Jr., head of the Philadelphia National Bank, and one of the most powerful business figures in Pennsylvania. After Hoover arrived, Wayne called in four other important Philadelphia bankers.

Subject of the conference was GOP chances in 1936 and who should head the ticket.

Hoover told the group the same thing he imparted to all he met during his Eastern visit—that he was convinced the country was fed up with New Deal experimentation, was eager to return to old-fashioned Republican conservatism.

When the question of candidates came up, Hoover said he had no ambition to run again. But he made it clear he intended having a lot to say about who was nominated.

His hosts pressed Hoover for an expression of choice. The reply was Ogden L. Mills, Hoover's Secretary of the Treasury and the man whom many Republican leaders think is behind the ex-President's resumption of political activity.

The Philadelphia bankers were definitely cool to this suggestion. Much to Hoover's surprise, they said that no man prominently connected with his regime or the GOP Old Guard could be elected.

Pals

A "ski" was enacted at the recent Gridiron Club dinner about which not one word is to be found in the printed program.

Only a few of the 400 guests witnessed it, but it was far more dramatic than any of the numerous acts officially staged by the newsmen.

Among the many celebrities present was General Hugh S. Johnson. During the course of the evening, and while engrossed in talking with his table companions, Johnson felt a light blow on his shoulder.

Thinking a waiter had bumped him while passing, Johnson did not look around. Then came another and firmer nudge.

Johnson turned to find, smiling and with one hand extended, Donald H. Riebeling.

"Hello, Hugh."

"Hello, Don."

And the two men, once close friends but in recent months hurlers of vitriolic epithets, laughingly shook hands.

Sure Thing

Some kind of bonus bill seems certain to become law this session. But the act finally passed will not be the Patman greenback measure adopted by the House, nor the Vinson bill approved by the American Legion.

The law which will go on the statute books will be the compromise offered by Senator Pat Harrison or something very similar to it.

Under this formula the date of adjusted service certificates will be advanced so that they mature in 1938 instead of 1945, and veterans will be able to exchange them for negotiable, non-interest bearing bonds.

These bonds can be held until 1938 for their full face value, or cashed at once at their current value, which would be minus interest to maturing date.

Reason why neither the Patman nor Vinson bills have a chance is that the President is adamantly opposed to them, and votes are

County Has Fine Rating Compared with 16

Pickaway-co has 117 more farms in operation now than in 1930 and has only 15 idle farms, according to figures disclosed today by E. C. Gehres, of Chillicothe, who has had charge of the 1935 farm census in 17 counties of the southern Ohio district.

The census was completed last Saturday.

The fact that only 15 farms in Pickaway-co are idle is evidence that practically all Pickaway-co soil is sought-after as splendid farm land. None of the other 17 counties in the district can boast a figure so low as Pickaway's, Highland-co being nearest with 47 idle farms.

Now Has 2,156
Pickaway-co, according to the census, had 2,029 farms in operation in 1930 and now has 2,156.

In the 17 counties there were 46,168 farms in operation in 1935 as compared with 38,646 five years ago.

Figures for the counties of the district were as follows:

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Says Showers Not In Plans, Lighting Is All Right

That it is "the purpose of the post office department to provide new furniture for the Circleville office" was expressed in a letter to Mack Parrett, Jr., secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, by S. W. Purdum, fourth assistant postmaster general.

This is one of the dozen items urged by local civic clubs before the federal building is occupied by the government.

That the office will probably not get a shower bath as asked is stated by Purdum, who notes that shower baths are for first class offices only and since Circleville is second class there is no provision made for the same. Adequate provision has also been made for artificial lighting, Purdum reports.

The matter of sidewalks, down spouts, curbs, landscaping and basement walls is under the jurisdiction of the treasury department.

Trouper Admits Marrying Mae West In 1911 in Milwaukee as Record Says

NEW YORK, April 23.—The New York Evening Journal in a copy-righted story said that an old time trouper had admitted marrying Mae West April 11, 1911, in Milwaukee.

"The dance man," the story added, "is Frank Wallace, 42, of the team of Wallace and La May, under the management of Jack Cornell of the Strand building, and he says he is still in love with La Belle West."

The story continued: "What a girl what a girl!" signed Wallace, a self-effacing paradox of the usual 47th street and Seventh avenue variety.

"What do I think of her?" he repeated.

"If I had the money I would still be sending her flowers every week. There is still a soft spot in my heart for Mae, though I suppose she has long forgotten her old partner and husband."

Wallace, the story added, is a slender, dark chap, of medium height who is proud of the silence he maintained for 24 years which he says was a gesture of his devotion to the "milk of the rhinoceros."

The Journal quoted Wallace as follows:

"Went Own Way"
"I always had enough confidence in myself to make good in the profession, and when Mae started about I kept quiet and continued doing my way."

"You know, Mae and I made a kid agreement that if either of us got to the top of the ladder, the other would help the other. She didn't get it. I never asked her and I never opened my mouth when she climbed ahead. She deserves all the success she earned."

Wallace related, in halting phrases, the Journal said, the kiddish romance that he says culminated in the marriage to Mae West and subsequently wound up in a sudden divorce in 1916 or 1917.

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—Mae West, beautiful blonde screen star, could not be reached early today for a direct statement concerning reports from New York which said an old trouper, Frank Wallace, 42, had admitted marrying the film beauty in Milwaukee, Wis., in April 1911.

However, a representative of Miss West said:

"All I can say is that Miss West has denied ever marrying a Frank Wallace, or any one else."

At the same time it was pointed out the curvaceous actress yesterday, when questioned concerning her reputed marriage to a Frank Wallace, in Milwaukee, had said:

"The only actor I ever knew named Wallace played in one of my shows. I didn't know his front name. I wasn't married to him and I was a school girl in 1911."

REPUBLICANS JOIN CONTEST

Graham and Phebus Obtain Petitions to Nomination for Mayor; Lyle to Run

The hats of two local Republicans were in the ring today for the nomination for mayor. They were Will J. Graham, E. Mound-st. and Harry Phebus, Watt-st. Both have obtained nominating petitions from Harry E. Weil, deputy clerk of the board of elections, and have them in circulation.

At least one other Republican is planning to enter the race but has not yet obtained his petition. He is A. J. Bert Lyle, W. Mound-st.

After a sudden flare several weeks ago the political pot had simmered quietly to a stand-still until the last few days when several persons began "aspiring" to office.

Honors—Little Action

No new candidates have been reported for the mayor's job on the Democratic ticket in the past few weeks. Mayor W. E. Cady is in the race for his second term. Boyd Horn has obtained a petition and so has Raymond H. Smith, former police officer. Several other persons have been mentioned but none have taken any definite action.

Carl C. Leist has let it be known that he will seek the Democratic nomination for his second term as solicitor.

Other city officials including Treasurer Lawrence Johnson and Auditor Lillian M. Young will be up for re-election as will all members of council.

Three members of the board of education will be subject to the polls this year. They are Charles H. May, president; Robert G. Colville and Clarence R. Barnhart.

Mrs. Lillian W. Moore and Lawrence Goeller are hold-over members.

Becomes Treasurer

While none of the members have announced their intentions it is believed all three will seek re-election. Mr. Colville becomes treasurer in September and some of his friends have said he may not want to be weighed with the school board job in addition to his county duties.

OHIO RELIEF LIST

SLASHED BY 18,115

COLUMBUS, April 23.—The number of persons on relief rolls in Ohio decreased 18,115 in March, leaving the state's relief "ceaseless" at 1,218,298 at that time, it was announced today by federal relief headquarters here.

Dr. Carl Frasure, state native and graduate of the Ohio school there, will return to the Wednesday evening to assist in the Stoutsville seniors in commercial exercises. Frasure is now a member of the faculty of the University of West Virginia.

Eighteen seniors will be given diplomas. They are Woodrow H. Hight, Alvore Valentine, Frances Adams, Helen K. Hodges, Porter Miller, Mabel Koehner, Clara Crager, Rosemary Critch, Anna Pearce, Myrtle Beatty, Louise Goodman, Florence Van Pelt, Thelma Justus, Robert Albert, Hazel Stahl, Doris E. Leve Grubb, Miss Hoffman, class president.

Pupils from practically every Pickaway-co school took part either in the instrumental or vocal program.

The instrumental program was in charge of Floyd E. Elliott, of the Capital university school of music, while the vocal program was directed by Dr. Joseph A. Leeder of the Ohio State university, music instructor at Sautot-tpw as accompanist.

The program started with an address of welcome by C. A. Highley, superintendent of the Ashville school, G. D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools,

QUAKES SWEEP NEW DISTRICTS; RELIEF RUSHED

Persian Province Scene of Disaster Killing at Least 500

WATER, FOOD SHORT

Chaos Reigns in Formosa, Struck Sunday

LONDON, April 23.—Killing at least 500, a series of destructive earthquake shocks hit Mazaderan province in Persia, today, a Reuter dispatch from Teheran said.

So far 483 bodies have been recovered, and property damage is heavy, said the telegram.

Persia lies in a zone of frequent earth disturbances, and three times in the last 12 years huge death tolls have been piled up in earthquakes there.

In 1923 nature's destroying hand killed 4,600, in 1929 2,000, and in 1930 another 2,000.

Fear was felt in Teheran that the latest catastrophe would assume proportions approaching those of the earlier earthquakes, the report said, since communications in several districts were cut off.

The districts of Dodangueh, Tehardangueh, and Lezardjarib, in the vicinity of Sari, were the hardest hit.

3,165 Death Toll

TAIROKI, Formosa, April 23.—Steady streams of rugged peasants, injured in Sunday's earthquakes, continued to pour into emergency aid centers today as the army and Red Cross battled to bring order out of the chaos resulting from the death of 3,165 persons.

Airplane surveys of the northwestern section of the island indicated that 2,000 square miles had been devastated, with whole villages reduced to heaps of dirt bricks and ashes.

Want of food and medicine still caused suffering to thousands of homeless Chinese in the mountain (Continued on Page Two.)

MRS. REITERMAN, 55 DIES IN MONROE-TP

Mrs. Harry Reiterman, 55, died Monday at 7 p. m. at her home in Monroe-tpw near Mt. Sterling of acute bright's disease.

She was born in Frankfort where she resided until her marriage, then moving to the farm in Monroe-tpw.

Besides her husband, one son, Raymond, at home; her father, Albert Betz of Frankfort, a step-mother, and one sister Mrs. Earl Morrison of near Frankfort, survive.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Methodist Episcopal church in Mt. Sterling with Rev. W. N. Mantle officiating. Burial will be in Chillicothe.

The deceased was a sister-in-law of Mrs. John Fry, Jackson-tpw.

Tax Expert, Educator Debate Foundation Bill Before Committee

84 MILLIONS ASKED

Senate Group Expects to Vote Wednesday

COLUMBUS, April 23.—The senate education committee today pitted the state's ace taxation expert, Carlton S. Dargusch, 34-year-old vice chairman of the state tax commission, against Ohio's foremost education authority, Dr. E. O. Skinner, 60, grey-haired former college president, in the final battle over the proposed state school foundation program bill.

Dargusch and Dr. Skinner, Ohio's state director of education, proponents of widely divergent views on the $84,000,000 state school program, will go to the mat before the committee when the Traxler-Kiefer bill comes to a vote in committee tomorrow afternoon.

3-Mill Levy Issue

The issue is a mandated three-mill levy, required of every school district in the state under the provisions of the measure, already passed by the house, which proposes a foundation school program based on $45 per pupil in elementary schools and $67.50 per pupil in high schools.

Dargusch, schooled at Ohio State university and the University of Indiana, will fight for an amendment to the measure that would eliminate the mandated levy and in its place require every school district to raise an amount equal to $22 a pupil through local levies, not to exceed six mills.

ROTARIANS TO PICK OFFICERS

Charles H. May Nominated for President to Succeed S. G. Rader

The Rotary club will conduct its annual election of officers Thursday noon at its meeting at the American Hotel coffee shop.

Charles H. May, who has served during the past year as vice president, has been nominated for president to succeed S. G. Rader.

Nominees for vice president are Karl Herrmann, Ed Wallace and Earl Lutz; for secretary, Charles T. Gilmore; for treasurer, John Ryan; for directors, two to be elected: Ray Davis, Hildeburn Jones, Robert Anderson, William Radcliff, Frank Fischer and E. S. Shane.

The speaker this week will be E. J. Metcham, general parole supervisor for Ohio, who will speak on "Sunshine and Shadows."

Judge is Speaker

Judge Roy Williams, of the supreme court of Ohio made a splendid address before the Kiwanis club Monday evening on "Representative Government" in which he included many topics of interest to all members of the club.

Judge Williams has been a Kiwanian since 1919 and has served as lieutenant governor of the organization in the north central Ohio region.

He was accompanied here by his secretary.

Next Monday will be ball's night with a travel talk and moving pictures of a world cruise to comprise the program.

The club voted to give $10 to the Williamsport Boy Scout troop to help buy uniforms.

Persian Province Scene of Disaster Killing at Least 500

WATER, FOOD SHORT

Chaos Reigns in Formosa, Struck Sunday

LONDON, April 23—Killing at least 500, a series of destructive earthquake shocks hit Mazaderan province in Persia, today, a Reuter dispatch from Teheran said.

So far 483 bodies have been recovered, and property damage is heavy, said the telegram.

Persia lies in a zone of frequent earth disturbances, and three times in the last 12 years huge death tolls have been piled up in earthquakes there.

In 1923 nature's destroying hand killed 4,600, in 1929 2,000, and in 1930 another 2,000.

Fear was felt in Teheran that the latest catastrophe would assume proportions approaching those of the earlier earthquakes, the report said, since communications in several districts were cut off.

The districts of Dodangueh, Tchardangueh, and Lezardjarib, in the vicinity of Sari, were the hardest hit.

3,165 Death Toll

TAIROKU, Formosa, April 23—Steady streams of ragged peasants, injured in Sunday's earthquakes, continued to pour into emergency aid centers today as the army and Red Cross battled to bring order out of the chaos resulting from the death of 3,165 persons.

Airplane surveys of the northwestern section of the island indicated that 2,000 square miles had been devastated, with whole villages reduced to heaps of dirt bricks and ashes.

Want of food and medicine still caused suffering to thousands of homeless Chinese in the mountain (Continued on Page Two.)

Tax Expert, Educator Debate Foundation Bill Before Committee

84 MILLIONS ASKED

Senate Group Expects to Vote Wednesday

COLUMBUS, April 23—The senate education committee today pitted the state's ace taxation expert, Carlton S. Dargusch, 34-year-old vice chairman of the state tax commission, against Ohio's foremost education authority, Dr. B. O. Skinner, 60, grey-haired former college president, in the final battle over the proposed state tax foundation program bill.

Dargusch and Dr. Skinner, Ohio's state director of education, proponents of widely divergent views on the $84,000,000 state school program, will go to the mat before the committee when the Traxler-Kiefer bill comes to a vote in committee tomorrow afternoon.

3-Mill Levy Issue

The issue is a mandated three-mill levy, required of every school district in the state under the provisions of the measure, already passed by the house, which proposes a foundation school program based on $45 per pupil in elementary schools and $67.50 per pupil in high schools.

Dargusch, schooled at Ohio State university and the University of Indiana, will fight for an amendment to the measure that would eliminate the mandated levy and in its place require every school district to raise an amount equal to $22 a pupil through local levies, not to exceed six mills.

ROTARIANS TO PICK OFFICERS

Charles H. May Nominated for President to Succeed S. G. Rader

The Rotary club will conduct its annual election of officers Thursday noon at its meeting at the American Hotel coffee shop.

Charles H. May, who has served during the past year as vice president, has been nominated for president to succeed S. G. Rader. Nominees for vice president are Karl Herrmann, Ed Wallace and Earl Lutz; for secretary, Charles T. Gilmore; for treasurer, John Ryan; for directors, two to be elected; Ray Davis, Hildeburn Jones, Robert Anderson, William Radcliff, Frank Fischer and E. S. Shane.

The speaker this week will be E. J. Meacham, general parole supervisor for Ohio, who will speak on "Sunshine and Shadows."

Judge is Speaker

Judge Roy Williams, of the supreme court of Ohio, made a splendid address before the Kiwanis club Monday evening on "Representative Government" in which he included many topics of interest to all members of the club.

Judge Williams has been a Kiwanian since 1919 and has served as lieutenant governor of the organization in the north central Ohio region.

He was accompanied here by his secretary. Next Monday will be ladies' night with a travel talk and moving pictures of a world cruise to comprise the program.

The club voted to give $10 to the Williamsport Boy Scout troop to help buy uniforms.

CAMPAIGN TO COLLECT DELINQUENT TAXES IS URGED

TAX CHAIRMAN URGES ACTION

Ten-Mill Limitation Necessitates Counties Getting As Much As Possible

COLUMBUS, April 23—Another public drive to collect delinquent taxes was urged by officials of the state tax commission today to raise sufficient revenue for maintenance of schools and municipal governments.

Pointing to an approximate ten per cent increase in collection of delinquent taxes during the past year over the preceding 12 months must be reduced still further if the necessity of levying new taxes is to be avoided.

Need Great Share

Enactment of the ten-mill limitation amendment has made it imperative that local subdivisions collect as great a share of the delinquent taxes as possible to produce enough revenue to sustain local governments. Passage of the Whittemore measure, providing for collection by installments of delinquent taxes prior to 1934 should facilitate the collection of back taxes in the opinion of Quincy A. Davis, chairman of the state tax commission.

The Whittemore bill would extend the provisions of the present act to apply to personal property and classified property taxes delinquent in or prior to 1934. The previous act provided for collections prior to 1932.

Although the state tax commission is empowered by law to appoint special collectors to push collection of delinquent taxes, the present board will leave the delinquent collection to county authorities who know conditions in their respective counties, officials disclosed.

The delinquent problem, which last year stirred public officials and civic bodies to conduct a statewide campaign to urge payment of delinquent tax bills, has been alleviated considerably during the past 12 months, Davis said.

Farmers Cut Amount

Owners of farm property have been responsible to a large extent for reducing the amount of delinquent taxes, he stated. Payments received under corn-hog and wheat production control contracts with the federal government have brought farmers a great deal more revenue and much of this was immediately turned back into county treasuries as payments on delinquent tax bills.

Valuation of real estate are at bottom levels in nearly every section of the state as a result of valuation cuts made during the past two or three years, Davis indicated.

HUEY'S CLOTHING 'SLAYS' CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 23—Curious tourists and capitol attaches gaped Monday as they viewed the one-man Easter parade of Senator Huey P. Long.

The Louisiana Kingfish, who returned to Washington on the self-appointed mission of "Slapping Secretary Lokes' ears back," showed up at his office in a sartorial ensemble that was very mid-sun-merish and very Long-ish.

Here is it:
A straw hat, with a gay band.
A tan tropical-weight suit.
A lavender shirt, with checks.
A red-and-green tie.
Tan and white sport shoes.

Duplicate Small
"Many districts have such small tax duplicates they cannot raise enough for school purposes even with much greater levies than six mills. 2 JUDGES NAMED IN MURDER CASE

COLUMBUS, April 23—Judges Fred H. Wolf of Wauseon and Emmitt H. Everett of Lima, today were assigned by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the Ohio Supreme Court to sit with Judge Sumner E. Walters of Van Wert County next Thursday on the case of Roy Smith, who pleaded guilty to a first degree murder charge in connection with the slaying of a deputy sheriff.

The two additional judges were assigned by the chief justice at the request of Judge Walters in accordance with Ohio law providing that a court of three judges must decide the fate of a confessed slayer.

Smith pleaded guilty last Saturday to the fatal shooting of Forest L. Good, Van Wert-co deputy sheriff, during a tussle that followed an attempt by officers to question him regarding a wheat theft.

ORIENTAL RUG LECTURE MONDAY WELL ATTENDED

The lecture on Oriental Rugs by Archie M. Jamgotchin, Monday evening, at the Presbyterian church sponsored by the Monday club was very well attended and extremely interesting.

Mr. Jamgotchin spoke for forty five minutes on methods and locations of rug weaving showing illustrative slides. He also showed pictures of many famous antique oriental rugs, which are in galleries and private collections in this country and Europe.

WASHINGTON-TWP SCHOOL TO HAVE CLASS PLAY

The junior class of the Washington-twp high school will present its play, "The Spanish Onion," Thursday, April 25, at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium.

C. D. Bennett, superintendent, is director of the play written by Carl Webster Pierce.

In spite of its title the play is not of the vegetable kingdom, but contains the antics of extremely amusing members of the animal kingdom.

It has to do with students of Fair Haven College and what happens when the heartless little heartbreaker, Delight Townsend, starts selling some of her numerous dates to the less favored girls, Minnie Ross and Cynthia Red.

When a boy objects she overrules the objections by the simple expedient of becoming engaged to him on the theory that he will then do anything for love.

Complications arise one after another. A whole crew of varied college types promise to make the play full of fun for every one.

Characters will be portrayed by the following:

Eugene Barthlemas, Charles McWhorter, Bernard Matz, Lewis Hiller, Sophia Peters, Edith Valentine, Doris Chester, Myrtle McDaniel, Eileen Brown, Richard El and private collections in this country and Europe.

Evening Gown

Isn't this an enchanting evening gown? It's made of organdie with chenille-like dots appliqued on. A white rayon taffeta slip and taffeta girdle come with it. Pretty in red or navy on white.

ANTI-WAR HYSTERIA

Terror of conscripting man power, which is to say some 23,000,000 voters between the ages of 21 and 45, dominated the house of representatives in eliminating that authorization to the president before passing the McSwain war profits bill. The theory had been that if these millions knew they could be conscripted and sent into the army or put to work, they would be, through the years, a powerful influence against letting the country go to war. That theory was speedily abandoned—and for a reason!

Though this was frankly pacifist measure, the house members were afraid of reprisals at the polls in November of next year. They did not so much fear the idea of commandeering industry virtually as a whole, though in the form the bill takes this is about as objectionable as the labor feature. As it stands the bill gives the president the power to "freeze" prices, close stock exchanges and control business, except the press, whose liberty is guaranteed by the constitution, and tax away "excess war profits" 100 per cent. It was passed 387 to 15 in a wave of almost hysteria, a one-sided bill designed to make business dread going into war because of lack of profits. Actually it would ruin where it seeks to restrain. It ought to be, and probably will be, rewritten in the senate.

It is, of course, silly to presume that statute law can keep us, or any other country, out of war. An inflamed public sentiment, working in congress, could speedily undo a dozen statutes. It is only an intelligent public opinion capable of being itself unswayed by passions and of electing lawmakers of its own type that can be successful in permanently maintaining peace. Such sweeping powers as the McSwain bill seeks to confer upon the president have no justification.

DECLINE OF THE SHAVE

Sturdy Americans have never liked the triumph of the safety razor. But with the advent of a patent clockwork safety razor the time has come for a firm stand against such devices of emasculation and vitiation.

The morning shave has had its share in making us what we are. No one has shaved himself of a winter morning with water which has been hotter and a razor which has been sharper, without coming near to the heroic.

The theory that it is the cold bath which makes America is untenable; it is the laborious shave which has done the deed and it is impossible to conjecture what depths of degradation we may suffer if automatic shaving comes into fashion.

It follows, by a natural process of deduction, that the degeneracy of the "modern girl" is the direct outcome of her shorn locks. For, in the days of rats and braids and coils, the patience of the female was trained by the necessity of arranging the customary superabundance of hair. While lubby slashed and swore, the good wife struggled with her flowing tresses with chilly fingers in the cold dawn of wistful mornings.

Back in those dim, dark days we now recall it was accounted worse for a woman to descend to breakfast with her hair not "done" than for the man to appear at breakfast unshaven. Hence woman has revolted first; she cut off her hair and escaped from her ennobling tortures.

SLOWER GROWTH

There comes a time in the life of every country when its population becomes stationary, and a study of population statistics gathered by the census bureau during the last three decades indicates that the United States is approaching that point.

An analysis made by life insurance company experts fixes the time at 1970 and the nation's population at that time at 170,000,000, which is nearly 50 per cent greater than the present population. This is predicated on the nation's birth rate, which has been steadily declining, and also on the assumption that the national government will never again let down the immigration bars.

History shows that once the population of a country ceases to grow it remains stationary for about half a century and then begins slowly to decline. This is something every land expects and usually finds desirable.

It is well that this matter of future population be kept in mind, for it will govern the country's economic and industrial expansion. There must be no building for a population and consumption which will never be realized, for that was one of the things which brought on the depression.

America owes her wealth and progress, and did owe her prosperity, to her rapid growth in population. Will she enjoy health, wealth, prosperity and progress when her population becomes stationary? No other country has to the same degree.

A Chicago lady, always inclined to believe the best of everybody, is beginning to suspect that her husband, whom she hasn't seen for twenty-six years, has deserted her.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Ashville's population increased 52 persons in 10 years, according to census reports. The population April 1, 1930, was 1085; in 1920, it was 1032.

Dr. Harry D. Jackson served with the 112th medical camp in Columbus, following the first sanitary disaster. He assisted in examining the bodies of the victims at the fair grounds.

A dinner and card party at the Pickaway County club was attended by 56 members and guests.

15 YEARS AGO

Wayne Caldwell, 72, retired business man and one of Circleville's leading citizens, died at his home on S. Court-st. He was manager of the cannery plant at Ashville.

Circleville Tigers lost to the Columbus Forge and Iron Co. baseball team at Mason field, 11-4. Pitcher for the Tigers struck out 18 men and allowed but three hits, the game going to the visitors on numerous costly errors.

The annual entertainment of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Brotherhood was in the form of a musical, with John G. Miller, Jr., as the main attraction. The cast included: R. L. Bremner, George Hinard, Paul Helwegson, Karl Herrmann and Ed Sennelender.

25 YEARS AGO

The stock of groceries of the late Jerome Sapp was purchased by C. A. Helwegson, Julius Helwegson was engaged as manager to continue the business at the old stand in the Pythian castle.

H. W. Pomonah was awarded the contract for building a modern 11-room brick dwelling for Harry Dunlap on the old Hurst farm near Williamport.

The Daniel Stout farm in Washington township, consisting of 122 acres, was purchased by Lewis E. Leist for $75 an acre.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE
BY McDONALD FEATHER

CHAPTER 45
THE GYPSIES migrated to Kentucky, keeping ahead of the warning weather days, then to make early spring camp on the outskirts of Louisville and gathered with other tribes. They pitched in the woods away from the town, each tribe in its own particular spot where the grass was considered the greenest or the water the clearest, yet collectively they had a stand on the roadway leading into town where they sold baskets and woven furniture, wood carving and gypsy trinkets, hammered silver and brass. There were several fortune telling booths, a dozen other young girls, America and saucy young Melba told fortunes. Some of the men wrestled Voda and Honey joined other groups, altogether making a tiny circus of five leopards, attracting the children from town and extracting their pennies. In fact, it was quite the thing for the town folk to say "Let's go down to the gypsy stand and have our fortunes told." "Let's go down and see if they have that tray finished I ordered." "Let me show you the pictures—me of the gypsies' paintings. They're the loveliest things you ever looked at." So it was easy to see why this was a good spring camp for the gypsies.

The canvases of the Dummy sold readily for their value, when one lets his heart flow through the paints, people will stop and look and look again and buy. His easel stood in the shadow of Girtza's van, on the side of which he had painted the dancing figure of Consuelo. So when his courage lessened or his fingers grew tired he had only to look up at her smiling down at him and, renewed, he could work again.

But as the weeks passed the magic of the picture changed and when he looked up his gaze would linger and he could not get back to work. He seemed to be searching, seeking for something that was always just out of his reach. Time and time again he would awaken in the night with the feeling that he had seen a picture he must paint but the actual vision of it eluded him. Then one morning he took down the canvas and he saw her face and put up a clean canvas and began to work. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WE ARE ASHAMED OF IT.

Editor, Herald:
If there is a single citizen of Circleville, man or woman, normal in body and mind, who has ever expressed him or herself as being proud of our new federal building, now in process of completion, the writer has neither met nor heard of one of them.

In our travels over several states of the union, from east to west and from north to south, we have never clapped eyes upon as shameful a governmental failure, architecturally and structurally as the lemon now about to be handed the citizens and taxpayers of Circleville and Pickaway-co.

Its appearance from Highway No. 23, one of the busiest thoroughfares in America, is that of a severely plain, hodge hodge building whose upper portion has been recently wrecked by a passing tornado and which seems to be patiently awaiting replacement. In appearance, the present Pickens building on E. Franklin-st. is a credit to it.

Moreover, there isn't another building of any pretension in the city, including the court house, the jail, the city building, the Masonic temple, the Crist store, the K. of P. temple, the Elks building, the Grand and the Cliftona theaters and the largest church buildings and others, but what is superior in almost every regard as well as in general appearance and outward attractiveness. As a matter of fact, the fine old-time residence which the new nondescript replaces, was a decidedly finer monument architecturally and ornamentally and a building the city was never ashamed of.

It is noted that our congressman and senator at Washington have been appealed to in respect to the finish of the new building. Just what they been asked to do about it, we are not informed. What these lawmakers at Washington ought to do about it, is to tell the government that Circleville will refuse to take off its hands any such a botched-up job as this unsightly pile of brick which now disgraces the finest building site in Old Round Town.

A cording to Saturday's Herald, the post office department at Washington has been notified of as many as eleven delinquencies in completion of the project, granting that the main building itself is satisfactory, which it is not in any reasonable particular.

In a letter to the papers before construction began, the writer advised that the haste to obtain the federal ornament, together with the insufficient amount of money allocated, would result, in all probability, in an unsatisfactory development, which it "sure has." It might be argued that it affords all the room necessary for postoffice operations. Well, if room is all we wanted, why did we not think of trundling up one of the brick parking houses of the west side? So far as plenty of room is concerned, either the Greece or Ruggles huge plants would have answered and as far as appearance and attractiveness is concerned, we would have been just as proud of one as the other.

We can well imagine what chagrin and mortification citizen Gus Schleyer would regard the changes which have taken place since his passing.

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

The boys and girls of all ages were out on dress parade Easter Sunday, and those of us who didn't sport as much as a new necktie just watched from the sidelines—and it was a sight worth seeing. I don't know who started this dress-up-for-Easter stunt, but I have a hunch it was somebody who had something to sell in the line of wearing apparel. So our vanity comes first—and our religious observance of the day just a secondary consideration.

I overheard two colored boys in the exchange of badinage Sunday morning.

"Why ain't you dressed up for Easter," said the tall, skinny one.

"What you talkin' about; I is dressed up," replied his short companion.

"You call that being dressed up?" continued the skinny one.

"Why, man, looks to me like all you done was to wash you' face an' button you' coat."

I'm strongly in the notion of filing a damage suit against somebody, getting a "habes-cuspus," or something of the kind. In following out the idea of the Chamber of Commerce to provide more parking space in the business section last Saturday, I moved the fliver to another location in the residence section. When I went to get it a few hours later the windshield was in more than the customary number of pieces. And I noted also that the baseball game had moved farther up the block.

Poems That Live

A PRAYER AFTER ILLNESS
Tune me for life again, O quiet Musician.

Strive to adjust my loosened thoughts until Made taut, they shall be yielding to Thy Fingers.

Gladly as trees to winds that touch this hill.

Rhyme me with line and more, O silent Poet.

Out of my weary, fluttering heartbeats make Cool rhythms, hushed yet certain as the circling

Water against the edges of this lake.

Fit me for life again, O patient Artist.

Paint on my tired soul glad, vivid things.

Splash now upon its dulness beauty's pigments, Lovely, as pansies and a bluebird's wings.

AT THE CIRCLE

One of the finest examples of the new trend of suspense and comedy films which has come out of Hollywood in recent months is "The Mystery Man," starring Robert Armstrong and featuring Maxine Doyle which opens tonight at the Circle Theatre.

Don't let the title deceive you, as there is probably more comedy than mystery in this new Armstrong starring vehicle, which tells of the gripping adventures of a reporter who insults his managing editor and wakes up, after a gay early on board a St. Louis bound train.

AT THE GRAND

It's quite customary for a group of extras with Irish names to portray a "mob" of Brazilian fishermen or a troop of Punjabi soldiers in a Hollywood studio, on the grounds that makeup and costume can fool any camera.

But Director Joe May ruddy up set this procedure when he demanded that only real Bavarians be obtained to play villagers in the "Eberndorf" sequences of "Music in the Air," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday, featuring Gloria Swanson, John Boles, Douglas Montgomery and June Lang.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Arthur Somers Roche's baffling mystery story, "Shadow of Doubt," which kept the readers of Colliers in suspense for so many weeks, and which has created more comment than any story of its type since "The Thin Man," is to come to the screen heralded as one of the most novel of all filmdom's detective yarns. Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, it opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre with Ricardo Cortez and Virginia Bruce heading an imposing cast, including Betty Furness, Regis Toomey, Isarel Jewell and Constance Collier.

As in "Penthouse," by the same author, "Shadow of Doubt" deals with the interesting people of both Broadway and Park Avenue and those more sinister characters who haunt the streets between.

Editorial Of The Day

A PROPHECY

(Washington C. H. Herald)
The credit agency of Dun and Bradstreet confidently predicts, after the completion of a survey of business conditions, that the United States is nearing—in fact entering upon—an era of prosperity greater than any other prosperous era we have experienced in twenty-five years.

It is not difficult to join in that prediction. The evidence that the financial and economic conditions are such as justify that prediction are overwhelming.

The financial institutions are literally stuffed with money and government bonds, a condition that cannot exist much longer. The accumulation of money must result in an expansion of credit and a speeding up of business.

The distressed farmers have been refinanced and mortgage holders at the same time relieved of distress, depositors in banks are doubly secured by the sound conditions of the banks and by government insurance.

There is great need of rebuilding and repairs of all sorts. The people have the money—or can get it—to carry on. There are no clouds at present on the horizon.

Dinner Stories

—So Now What?

The latest recruit had celebrated his Saturday leave by returning to barracks with two lovely black eyes and a face like an over-ripe tomato.

The sergeant-major let off steam in the old-fashioned style.

"Report to the guard-room at once, you blithering numskull!" he roared. "And while you're about it, bang your face out of the window as a warning to your pals as they come in."

"Anybody seen you yet?" he bawled out.

Passing the guard-room about an hour later the sergeant-major espied the recruit with his face at the window.

"Yes, sir, said the recruit, 'the colonel has just passed.'"

"And what did he have to say to you, with a face like that, eh?" asked the sergeant-major.

"He just said 'Good-morning, sergeant-major,'" replied the recruit, quietly.

How Coffee Affects Folk And Its Value in the Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE ANCIENT Romans dissipated and dissolute as they are popularly pictured to be, had, at any rate, no such variety of drug addicts as we have in our modern civilization. Their one habit along these lines was wine.

And it wasn't very strong wine at that. They had no cocaine and very probably no opium, or only a very crude and ineffectual form of it. They certainly had no such problem as our national problem of serious drug addiction with morphine and cocaine.

Nor did they have any of the mild, what I have chosen to call "the domestic additions" of tobacco, coffee and tea.

Coffee was introduced into Europe by way of Turkey only in the seventeenth century. In England it made an instantaneous success. Possibly its popularity was because the beverage was non-intoxicating, and people were tired of the boisterous assemblies in taverns.

Macaulay's description of the coffee houses when they were first set up is worth re-reading. It is in the third chapter of his History of England. There were political coffee houses, where crowds gathered to sip the popular drink and discuss the state of the nation. "There were coffee houses where the first medical men might be consulted. Doctor John Radcliffe, who in the year 1685 rose to the largest of careers, was and was to be found surrounded by surgeons and apothecaries, at a particular table."

Coffee, however, has greatly lost its vogue in England. The annual British consumption of coffee is about 7/10 pound per capita. While the consumption in the United States is about 11 pounds per capita. For tea, the figures are almost reversed—Great Britain consuming 9 1/2 pounds per capita, while the United States uses 5/10 pound per capita.

I am inclined to believe that the principal pleasure of coffee is in the taste, the smell and the comfort derived from a hot drink. Its physiological effects are not very marked, or at least they are not very marked as noticed very markedly by the average person.

Coffee Easy to Give Up

Certainly it is an easy habit to give up. There is no strong "craving" for coffee with most people. Everyone must have had the experience of having left his cup of coffee on the table and gone off forgetting to drink it.

There is no doubt that caffeine, the active ingredient, is a mental stimulant. Many experiments prove it. Testing, typewriting, small doses increased speed. Doses over three grains (about the amount in a cup of coffee) decreased speed; but even with the larger doses the quality of the work done was better.

It is a valuable stimulant to the heart, particularly that of middle age. The caffeinated varieties, as I know from personal experience, are hard to tell from the natural coffee, and certainly tend to overstimulate the heart.

ANTI-WAR HYSTERIA

Terror of conscripting man power, which is to say some 23,000,000 voters between the ages of 21 and 45, dominated the house of representatives in eliminating that authorization to the president before passing the McSwain war profits bill. The theory had been that if these millions knew they could be conscripted and sent into the army or put to work, they would be, through the years, a powerful influence against letting the country go to war. That theory was speedily abandoned—and for a reason!

Though this was frankly pacifist measure, the house members were afraid of reprisals at the polls in November of next year. They did not so much fear the idea of commandeering industry virtually as a whole, though in the form the bill takes this is about as objectionable as the labor feature. As it stands the bill gives the president the power to "freeze" prices, close stock exchanges and control business, except the press, whose liberty is guaranteed by the constitution, and tax away "excess war profits" 100 per cent. It was passed 367 to 15 in a wave of almost hysteria, a one-sided bill designed to make business dread going into war because of lack of profits. Actually it would ruin where it seeks to restrain. It ought to be, and probably will be, rewritten in the senate.

It is, of course, silly to presume that statute law can keep us, or any other country, out of war. An inflamed public sentiment, working in congress, could speedily undo a dozen statutes. It is only an intelligent public opinion capable of being itself unswept by passions and of electing lawmakers of its own type that can be successful in permanently maintaining peace. GYPSY GIRL

By McDONALD FEADER

CHAPTER 43
THE GYPSIES migrated to Kentucky, keeping abreast of the warm weather days, there to make early spring camp on the outskirts of Louisville and gathered with other tribes. They settled in the woods away from the town, each tribe in its own particular spot where the grass was considered the greenest or the water the clearest, yet collectively they had a stand on the roadway leading into town where they sold baskets and woven furniture; wood carving and gypsy trinkets; hammered silver and brass. There were several fortune telling booths. Gita and Iteba danced and half a dozen other young girls. Anica and saucy young Merla told fortunes. Some of the men wrestled. Voda and Honey joined other groups, altogether making a tiny circus of five bears, attracting the children from town and extracting their pennies. In fact, it was quite the thing for the town folk to say "Let's go down to the gypsy stand and have our fortunes told—" or "Let's go down and see if they have that tray finished I ordered—" or yet again, "Let me show you the pictures—" of the gypsies' paintings. They're the loveliest things you ever looked at—" So it was easy to see why this was a good spring camp for the gypsies.

The canvases of the Dummy sold readily, for surely when one looks at heart and the paints, people will stop and look and look again and buy. His easel stood in the shadow of Girtza's van, on the side of which he had painted the dancing figure of Consuelo. So when his courage lessened or his fingers grew tired he had only to look up at her smiling down at him and, renewed, he could work again.

But as the weeks passed the magic of the picture changed and when he looked up his gaze would linger and he could not get back to work. He seemed to be searching, searching for something that was always just out of his reach. Time and time again he would awaken in the night with the feeling that he had seen a picture he must paint but the actual vision of it eluded him. Then one morning he took down the half finished piece from his easel and put up a clean canvas and began to work. He had found what he sought and his steady fingers began to brush into form this picture that now stood so clearly in his mind.

"That Dummy is the crazy one to always be painting that no-good gypsy slut who ran away," Anica remarked, but the others paid no attention to her. Anica was bitter these days and could not keep her dark eyes off Marcu, though she knew that her love was as hopeless as it is to be young again when one has passed middle age. Ah, now, if she was young, Marcu would be falling in love with her, no doubt of it, but what gypsy chav will look with desire upon a woman who is past 30 and who is too fat and not as quick or as graceful as she used to be. Because he realized the futility of her love and because she was not yet ready to admit defeat, she was cross and spiteful and constantly nagging and Girtza would undoubtedly have beaten her if he had not been so contented.

In the busy days of the camp and the stand, Girtza was happy. He kept a watchful eye over his tribe and he was content to see that all went well with them. Together he and Marcu and one of the others or just he alone, would make long forays into the country to the nearest breeding stables trailing with them their own horses to offer for sale or trade. Ah, how he loved it, this sight of the blooded horses and he loved to try to make a trade against odds and would laugh afterwards if he had put something over on a gorgio in a deal. Ah, that was sport. He would return back to camp, proud of his trickery, and plan where the next day he might trade the filly he had gotten the month before and had fattened and made sleek and fine looking. He was glad of the deep grass about the camp, for it quickly put on a good coat where a shaggy one had been and grew fat over lean ribs and promised good points where bad ones were. Ah, now that was the way the gypsies fooled the gorgios—those who could be fooled.

He also had bargained for half a dozen milk cows, their udders fat and heavy. Ah, though there was a good winter for his people. There were new tents purchased and wagons repainted. The women sang at their work, plump arms heavy with jewelry and there were new babies coming, the result of languid summer days. Yes, here was happiness and his own heart responded—all except for that secret place which would never be healed when he thought of his daughter, his little one, who had gone away.

He remembered other winters which had not been so good, when there had been neither food nor money. Now take that winter when he was a lad back in the old country near the Danube. The tribe had been snowed in for four long months and all but a few of them had starved and tragedy walked unmasked and they saw her face too often. Ah, it was a bad time and the gypsies thought surely they would never be able to sing again. But spring had come at last. There was warmth and food and the meeting with another tribe and it was strange how quickly the flesh grew on their bones and they sang and danced and little showed the suffering and grief of that long winter.

Yes, how good it was here in the grassy fields. Mopey could be made and his greed for horse trading satisfied.

They were camped just beyond the property of a man named Willowby who owned a breeding farm and it was there Girtza had seen a particular little mare he much desired, but so far he had made no progress in trying to make a trade. The man Willowby was willing to sell the mare but his price, to Girtza's figuring was exorbitant and he would not consider any of the gypsies' horses for trade. Now this filly Girtza had been fattening and grooming for a month, perhaps it and that little black mare plus the colt might interest the Willowby. The colt had good points, the filly was more than promising and the mare had won two races—minor ones out of the state but nevertheless she had won, so Girtza set out alone leading the horses.

He found the man at his stables and greeted him.

Willowby glanced at the three horses and smiled.

"Well, gypsy, I see you're back again. Still want Flying Girl?" the name of the little mare.

"My friend," began Girtza, "you will never be able to resist this. I have to make this time. This filly, little over a year old, but look, my friend, at her stance. A fine promise, eh, what? And this colt has the legs of a runner and the mare, now this mare has run two races already and both of them she has won."

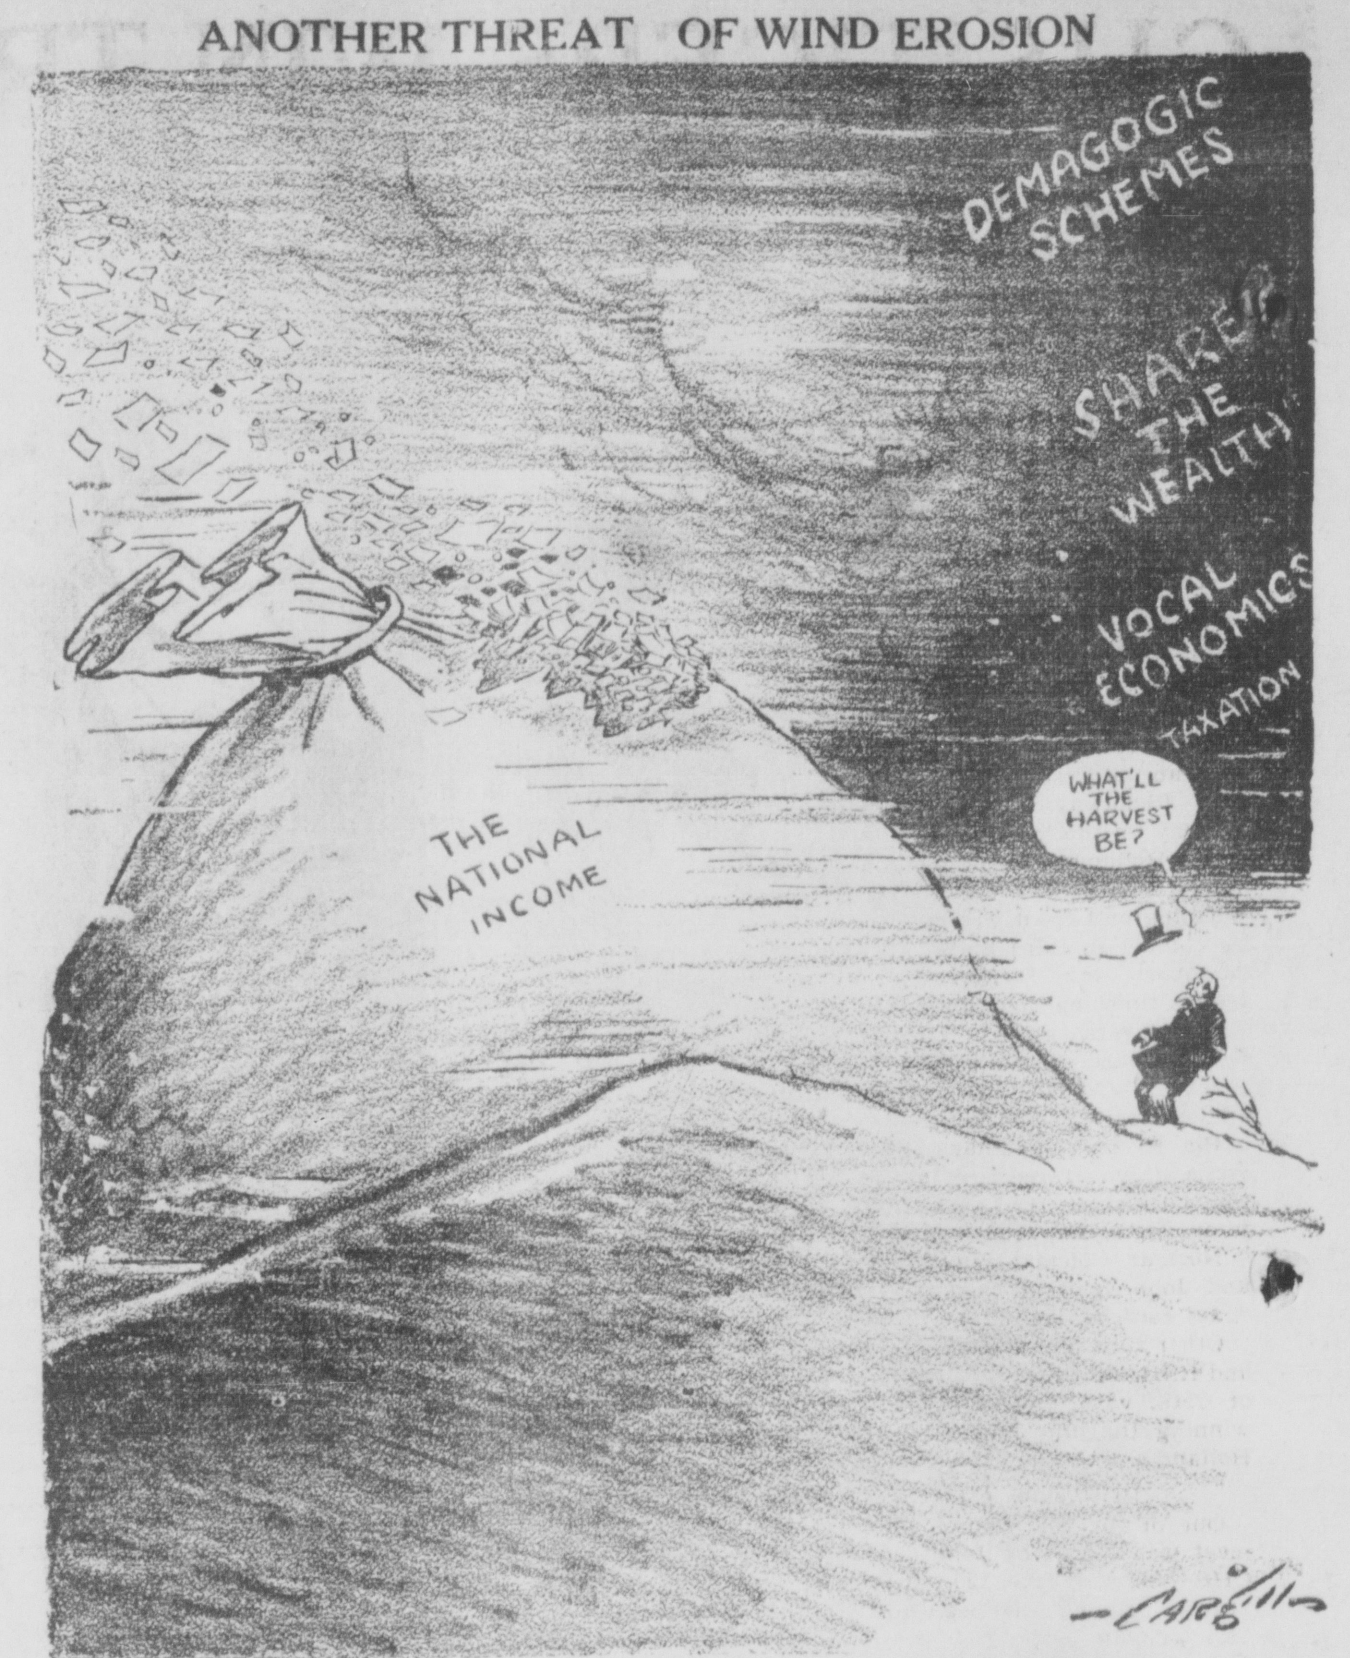

"Not the Derby?" laughed Willowby, lighting his pipe and leaning against a tree. "No thanks, gypsy, I'm not interested. The filly is squat with a wild eye. The colt is a gangling with bare promise of anything other than a stomach for oats and the mare—well, her dam was probably pretty good, but her sire was a work horse—and in those races she ran, were there other runners? No, gypsy, you'll have to have something real to offer before I'll sell or trade with you."

Girtza shrugged his shoulders. He was not offended.

"Ah, my friend, you know horses. Still there is quality in these three—perhaps you have something else besides the Flying Girl, eh, you might want to trade?"

"I've no use for your horses. There are some you might fool with your offer but it happens there are two things I know and I doubt if you could trick me on either—one, horses, the other good paintings. Sounds like boasting, doesn't it, but from the time I was a kid my father, old Colonel Willowby, one of the best young men in Kentucky in his time, taught me the fine points of horses; the other, the painting, I suppose I was born with. They're both my loves. Part of the time I live down here and part of the time I spend with my galleries and collections in New York and Detroit. He tapped his pipe against the tree trunk, wondering why he was telling a gypsy this. "By the way," he added, "a friend of mine was showing me a canvas which he said he bought at the gypsy stand on the highway. The work was unusually good. By any chance do you happen to know anything about the artist?" He refilled his pipe and lighted it.

AT THE CIRCLE

One of the finest examples of the new trend of suspense and comedy films which has come out of Hollywood in recent months is "The Mystery Man," starring Robert Armstrong and featuring Maxine Doyle which opens tonight at the Circle Theatre.

Don't let the title deceive you, as there is probably more comedy than mystery in this new Armstrong starring vehicle, which tells of the gripping adventures of a reporter who insults his managing editor and wakes up, after a gay party on board a St. Louis bound train.

AT THE GRAND

It's quite customary for a group of extras with Irish names to portray a "mob" of Brazilian fishermen or a troop of Punjabi soldiers in a Hollywood studio, on the grounds that makeup and costume can fool any camera.

But Director Joe May rudely upset this procedure when he demanded that only real Bavarians be obtained to play villagers in the "Eberndorf" sequences of "Music in the Air," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday, featuring Gloria Swanson, John Boles, Douglass Montgomery and June Lang.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Arthur Somers Roche's baffling mystery story, "Shadow of Doubt," which kept the readers of Colliers in suspense for so many weeks, and which has created more comment than any story of its type since "The Thin Man," is to come to the screen heralded as one of the most novel of all film-drama detective yarns. Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, it opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre with Ricardo Cortez and Virginia Bruce heading an imposing cast, including Betty Furness, Regis Toomey, Isarel Jewell and Constance Collier.

As in "Penthouse", by the same author, "Shadow of Doubt" deals with the interesting people of both Broadway and Park Avenue and those more sinister characters who haunt the streets between.

Editorial Of The Day

A PROPHECY

(Washington C. H. Herald)
The credit agency of Dun and Bradstreet confidently predicts, after the completion of a survey of business conditions, that the United States is nearing—in fact entering upon—an era of prosperity greater than any other prosperity era we have experienced in twenty-five years.

It is not difficult to join in that prediction. The evidence that the financial and economic conditions are such as justify that prediction are overwhelming.

The financial institutions are literally stuffed with money and government bonds, a condition that cannot exist much longer. The accumulation of money must result in an expansion of credit and a speeding up of business.

The distressed farmers have been refinanced and mortgage holders at the same time relieved of distress, depositors in banks are doubly secured by the sound conditions of the banks and by government insurance.

There is great need of rebuilding and repairs of all sorts. The people have the money—or can get it—to carry on. There are no clouds at present on the horizon.

Dinner Stories

—So Now What?

The latest recruit had celebrated his Saturday leave by returning to barracks with two lovely black eyes and a face like an over-ripe tomato.

The sergeant-major let off steam in the old-fashioned style. "Report to the guard-room at once, you blithering numskull!" he roared. "And while you're about it, 'ang your face out of the window as a warning to your pals as they come in."

"Anybody seen you yet?" he bawled out.

Passing the guard-room about an hour later the sergeant-major espied the recruit with his face at the window.

"Yes, sir, said the recruit, 'the colonel has just passed.'"
"And what did he have to say to you, with a face like that, eh?" asked the sergeant-major.

"He just said 'Good-morning, sergeant-major,'" replied the recruit, quietly.

How Coffee Affects Folk And Its Value in the Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE ANCIENT Romans dissipated and dissolute as they are popularly pictured to be, had, at any rate, no such variety of drug addicts as we have in our modern civilization.

Their one habit along these lines was wine. And it wasn't very strong wine at that. They had no cocaine and very probably no opium, or only a very crude and ineffectual form of it. They certainly had no such problem as our national problem of drug addiction.

Nor did they have any of the mild, what I have chosen to call "the domestic addictions" of tobacco, coffee and tea.

Coffee was introduced into Europe by way of Turkey only in the seventeenth century. In England, it made an instantaneous success. Possibly its popularity was because the beverage was non-intoxicating, and people were tired of the boisterous assemblies in taverns.

Macaulay's description of the coffee houses when they were first set up is worth re-reading. It is in the third chapter of his History of England. There were political coffee houses, where crowds gathered to sip the popular drink and discuss the state of the nation. "There were coffee houses where the first medical men might be consulted. Doctor John Radcliffe, who in the year 1685 rose to the largest practice in London, came daily to Garraway's and was to be found surrounded by surgeons and apothecaries, at a particular table."

Coffee, however, has greatly lost its vogue in England. The annual British consumption of coffee is about 7/10 pound per capita. While the consumption in the United States is about 11 pounds per capita.

For tea, the figures are almost reversed—Great Britain consuming 9 1/2 pounds per capita, while the United States uses 8/10 pound per capita.

I am inclined to believe that the principal pleasure of coffee is in the taste, the smell and the comfort derived from a hot drink. Its physiological effects are not very marked, or at least they are not such as can be noticed very markedly by the average person.

Coffee Easy to Give Up

Certainly it is an easy habit to give up. There is no strong "craving" for coffee with most people. Everyone must have had the experience of having left his cup of coffee on the table and gone off forgetting to drink it and yet feeling no urge.

There is no doubt that caffeine, the active ingredient, is a mental stimulant. Many experiments prove it. Testing typewriting, small doses increased speed. Doses over three grains (about the amount in a cup of coffee) decreased speed; but even with the larger doses the quality of the work done was better.

It is a valuable stimulant to the heart, particularly that of middle age. The caffeinated varieties, as I know from personal experience, are hard to tell from the natural coffee, and certainly tend to overcome insomnia.

ESHELMAN '9' JOINS LEAGUE; SIXTH NEEDED

Ralston-Purina Managers to Decide Today On Their Team; Begin May 6

One more entry is being sought for the Recreation ball league scheduled to start Monday, May 6.

Five teams are now in the league and all promise to be strong. They are Pickaway dairy, managed by Joe Glitt; Circleville Oils, managed by Dorthy Court-right; Cities Service, managed by Judy Gordon; Jones Specials, managed by Alfred 'Squirrel' Jones; and Esheleman Feeds, managed by Howard Goldsberry.

The Esheleman team came into the league at a meeting Monday evening held in The Herald office.

Several industrial firms are being considered for the sixth position but as yet none are definite. Ray Rowland and Elster Copeland were to decide today if the Ralston-Purina team would come into the league.

Managers of the loop teams decided Monday evening to postpone the deadline for entering the league to next Monday evening. The deadline had previously been set for Thursday evening.

Frank Lynch, president, was in charge of the meeting and urged all managers and league officials to attend another meeting next Monday at which time rules and regulations will be worked out. All entrance fees are to be deposited at that time and player rosters are to be in the hands of the league secretary.

Wins 26-Mile Run

John Kelley

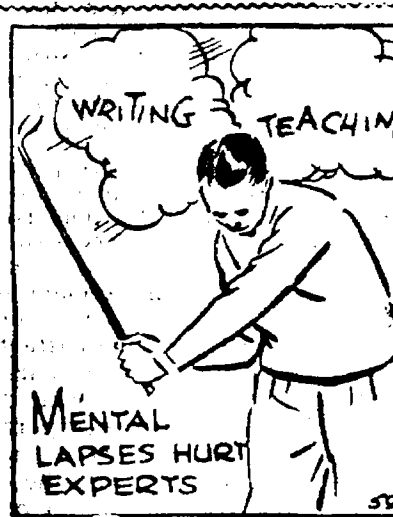

Running 26 miles, 385 yards in two hours, 32 minutes and 7 1/2 seconds, John Kelley, above, won the 39th annual Bos on marathon from an international field of 196 runners. More than 500,000 people along the course from Hopkinton to Boston saw the florist's helper in his endurance grind.

ALIBI TOO GOOD

CLEVELAND, O.—A "perfect alibi" failed to save John Gilbert, had to appear before Police Judge Jacob Stael to answer charges of speeding 64 miles an hour down an east side street here.

When a motorcycle policeman stopped Gilbert the latter said he was taking his wife to a hospital. Huston sped ahead of the Gilbert car with siren screaming, clearing the way of traffic and pedestrians. At the hospital, attaches said Gilbert had made no reservation, doctors said nothing was wrong with Mrs. Gilbert, and Huston booked Gilbert for speeding.

GOLF FACTS

ALEX MORRISON says: Recently I played a match with the long driving Charlie Lacey over his Lakeville course at Great Neck, Long Island. Although we came out all even I took 73 to Charlie's 72.

The scores were acceptable considering the condition of the course at this time of the year. Mine was particularly good for the fifth round played this year.

A locker room discussion brought out a point about mental lapses while playing. I had missed a few short easy shots through letting my mind wander away from the game. Charlie claimed, and rightly so, that he would have the advantage over me even if we were both in the same physical condition, because his mind was filled with just one thing, playing golf.

REDS TO OPEN 'HOME' STAY

Pirates Play There Today with Cubs and Cardinals Following

CINCINNATI, April 23—The Cincinnati Reds today will determine whether winning ball will pay them dividends as they open a nine-game stand at home here this afternoon in a tilt with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The gate receipts at Redland field will tell the answer.

The Reds, returning home in a tie for first place in the National league after winning four of their five games on a brief road trip, will play three games with the Pittsburgh nine, three with the Chicago and a similar number with the St. Louis Cardinals before taking to the road again.

Manager Charley Dresen sent his players through a two hour batting practice but otherwise granted them a holiday yesterday.

Baseball experts seeking to find the key to the Reds' success to date this season are placing their finger on the chain-lightning infield. The players guarding the sacks have completed 10 double and one triple play in six starts, to give the local pitchers needed support.

The Reds need only one of the three games with the Pirates to stay in the first division.

COLUMBUS ON ROAD COLUMBUS, April 23—Both Ohio teams in the American association started road trips today. Columbus will show at Indianapolis and Toledo will invade the home lot of the Louisville Colonels.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

A POOR NO TRUMP

ONLY NORTH and South were vulnerable. Three and a half quick tricks obligated an opening bid of some sort. Two 4-card suits, one of them biddable, offered a better diamond bid than 1-No Trump. Two suits and semi-two-suits, such as West held, usually do not afford good defense against no trumps, and he felt obliged to overcall the opening bid. Of course the remaining two players were justified in strongly bidding.

Bidding went: South, 1-No Trump; West, 2-Spades; North, 3-Diamonds; East, 4-Spades; South, 4-Diamonds; West, 4-Spades, which South accepted.

North felt that his suit was long to open with hopes of winning many tricks, so he led his top card. Really that made things harder on the declarer than if a diamond had been led. Dummy's K won the trick, but there was no possibility of going game if dummy had to lose a club.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Campbell Invited

Eddie Rickenbacker, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, has cabled an invitation to Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world's automobile speed record, to act as official starter for the Memorial Day event—Last year Roscoe Turner, famous aviator, was the starter.

Christian of Casey

Babe Ruth's making a Christian out of Casey Stengel, to hear Casey tell it: "He may be no galloping gazelle in the outfield, but he's still no bargain at the plate. That guy, 'Casey says' is sure making a Christian out of me. I'm praying every minute he's up at the plate that he doesn't get hold of one—He may not hit .300 at the plate, says Stengel, but he'll bat 1.000 at the gate and that's something.

Need Field Men

Followers of the high school track team believe the Tigers have a good chance in the Central Buckeye meet—There is an "if" however, and that is "if" Coach Herberholz can develop some stronger field event men before the loop meet. The Tigers will be truly tested next Tuesday at Chillicothe.

Might Lose a Cake

It seems that Columbus is set on its ball club with a bunch of young speed demons beating down the base paths—It's one thing to steal a base, but in order to steal one must first get on—We have a bet of a soft drink with Frank Lynch (guess what kind it is) that the Birds don't win half their games on the road trip which starts today.

Never Had Measles

Lou Smith, who writes plenty for the Cincinnati Enquirer, is firm in his belief that the Reds have the youngest team in the major leagues: "I learned yesterday," Smith writes, "that five of the first stringers have never had the measles."

Short Heads South

Harry Short, brother of Forrest, county auditor, is preparing to take his string of horses, about 16, of them to Lexington May 1. Harry wants to get in Kentucky so he'll have a good excuse to see the Derby. The usual number of race horse fans from here will probably be at the track—Many have gone in other years, some seeing the race and others not. It must be that Kentucky air.

CONSTABLE SHOT AS PISTOL FALLS

WAVERLY, April 23 When his revolver dropped from his pocket and discharged, John M. Farland, 35, constable, was killed Monday. M. Farland's car stalled on a hill and when he got out and stooped over to put a stone under a wheel the revolver fell. He lived at Jasper.

MOUND STARS TO TANGLE AT OSU

COLUMBUS, April 23—Illinois, defending Western Conference baseball champions and victors over the Scarlet and Gray in the lone contest played between the two schools to date, visit stadium field here today to again play the Fighting Buckeyes of Ohio State.

Wally Roettger, former big leaguer and coach of the Illini, will probably start Neal Swanson, sophomore pitching ace of the Orange and Blue squad who allowed the Bucks but three widely scattered blows in their first meeting.

Ronnie Peters, also a sophomore, who held Michigan to a lone bingle last week, will get the "nod" from coach Floyd Stant of the Bucks.

BIRDS' SELL TWO PLAYERS

Eddie Morgan, Who Refused to Sign, and Den Wetherell, Veteran Hurler, Go to New Orleans

COLUMBUS, April 23 Sale of Eddie Morgan, utility infielder, and Den Wetherell, right-handed pitcher, to the New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association was announced today by George M. Trautman, president of the Columbus Red Birds.

Morgan, counted upon as the Birds' regular first baseman at the start of spring training, had refused to come to terms with the local club. He insisted if he was to play minor league ball he would play it with the Pelicans. He is also a native of New Orleans.

Wetherell, due to an abundance of hurling prospects on the Red Bird mound staff, was sold in order to bring the pitching staff down to American Association requirements. He had been the property of the Flock for the past three years.

An unannounced sum of cash, expected to reach fair proportions, will be paid by New Orleans for Morgan, who formerly played with Cleveland of the American League, and Wetherell, who has played with various minor league teams, being "loaned" by the Birds.

HUDLIN BLANKS LOOP CHAMPIONS

CLEVELAND, April 23—The Cleveland Indians, resting easily in second place, rolled home today for the first game of the 1935 American league baseball season in their own backyard.

The Indians left Detroit last night after defeating the champion Tigers, 5 to 0, in the first no-extra inning game the Tribe has played this year. Pitcher Willis Hudlin stepped to the mound in the first inning and when he stepped down at the end of the ninth, the mighty Tiger batsmen had collected a total of three puny hits and nary a run.

Joe Vosmik pounded out a home run with two mates on base in the third inning. Four runs were chalked up that inning before

Go to Chillicothe

Next Tuesday the Tigers will travel to Chillicothe for a dual meet with the warriors of that school. Chillicothe won a triangular meet last Saturday from Marietta and Jackson scoring 69 points against 55 for Marietta; Jackson had only 10.

MOUND STARS TO TANGLE AT OSU

COLUMBUS, April 23—Illinois, defending Western Conference baseball champions and victors over the Scarlet and Gray in the lone contest played between the two schools to date, visit stadium field here today to again play the Fighting Buckeyes of Ohio State.

Wally Roettger, former big leaguer and coach of the Illini, will probably start Neal Swanson, sophomore pitching ace of the Orange and Blue squad who allowed the Bucks but three widely scattered blows in their first meeting. Ronnie Peters, also a sophomore, who held Michigan to a lone single last week, will get the "nod" from coach Floyd Stahl of the Bucks.

ESHELMAN '9' JOINS LEAGUE; SIXTH NEEDED

Ralston-Purina Managers to Decide Today On Their Team; Begin May 6

One more entry is being sought for the Recreation ball league scheduled to start Monday, May 6.

Five teams are now in the league and all promise to be strong. They are Pickaway dairy, managed by Joe Glitt; Circleville Oils, managed by Dorcy Court-right; Cities Service, managed by Judy Gordon; Jones Specials, managed by Alfred 'Squirrel' Jones, and Eshelman Feeds, managed by Howard Goldsberry.

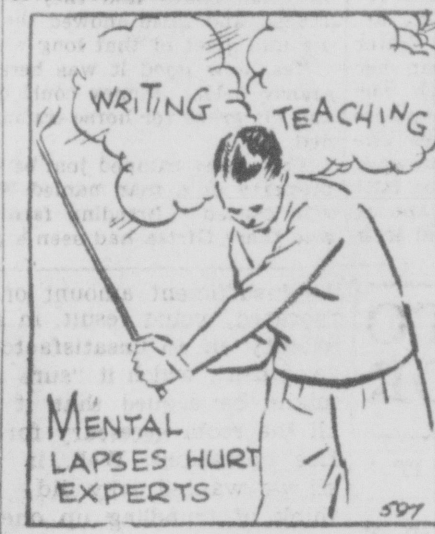

The Eshelman team came into the league at a meeting Monday evening held in The Herald office.

Several industrial firms are being considered for the sixth position but, as yet none are definite. Ray Rowland and Elster Copeland were to decide today if the Ralston-Purina team would come into the league.

Managers of the loop teams decided Monday evening to postpone the deadline for entering the league to next Monday evening. The deadline had previously been set for Thursday evening.

Frank Lynch, president, was in charge of the meeting and urged all managers and league officials to attend another meeting next Monday at which time rules and regulations will be worked out. All entrance fees are to be deposited at that time and player rosters are to be in the hands of the league secretary.

GOLF FACTS

Number 597

ALEX MORRISON says: Recently I played a match with the long driving Charlie Lacey over his Lakeville course at Great Neck, Long Island. Although we came out all even I took 73 to Charlie's 72.

The scores were acceptable considering the condition of the course at this time of the year. Mine was particularly good for the fifth round played this year.

A locker room discussion brought out a point about mental lapses while playing. I had missed a few short easy shots through letting my mind wander away from the game. Charlie claimed, and rightly so, that he would have the advantage over me even if we were both in the same physical condition, because his mind was filled with just one thing, playing golf.

REDS TO OPEN 'HOME' STAY

Pirates Play There Today with Cubs and Cardinals Following

CINCINNATI, April 23—The Cincinnati Reds today will determine whether winning ball will pay them dividends as they open a nine-game stand at home here this afternoon in a tilt with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The gate receipts at Redland field will tell the answer.

The Reds, returning home in a tie for first place in the National league after winning four of their five games on a brief road trip, will play three games with the Pittsburgh nine, three with the Chicago and a similar number with the St. Louis Cardinals before taking to the road again.

Manager Charley Dressen sent his players through a two hour batting practice but otherwise granted them a holiday yesterday.

Baseball experts seeking to find the key to the Reds success to date this season are placing their finger on the chain-lightning infield. The players guarding the sacks have completed 10 double, and one triple play in six starts, to give the local pitchers needed support.

The Reds need only one of the three games with the Pirates to stay in the first division.

COLUMBUS ON ROAD

COLUMBUS, April 23—Both Ohio teams in the American association started road trips today. Columbus will show at Indianapolis and Toledo will invade the home lot of the Louisville Colonels.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

A POOR NO TRUMP ONLY NORTH and South were vulnerable. Three and one-half quick tricks obligated an opening bid of some sort. Two 4-card suits, one of them biddable, offered a better diamond bid than 1-No Trump. Two-suiters and semi-two-suiters, such as West held, usually do not afford good defense against no trumps, and he felt obliged to overcall the opening bid. Of course the remaining two players were justified in strongly bidding.

Bidding went: South, 1-No Trump; West, 2-Spades; North, 3-Diamonds; East, 3-Spades; South, 4-Diamonds; West, 4-Spades, which South doubled.

North felt that his suit was too long to open with hopes of winning many tricks, so he led his top club. Really that made things harder for the declarer than if a diamond had been led. Dummy's K won the trick, but there was no possibility of going game if dummy had to lose a club.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

Campbell Invited

Eddie Rickenbacker, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, has cabled an invitation to Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world's automobile speed record, to act as official starter for the Memorial Day event—Last year Roscoe Turner, famous aviator, was the starter.

Christian of Casey

Babe Ruth's making a Christian out of Casey Stengel, to hear Casey tell it: "He may be no galloping gazelle in the outfield, but he's still no bargain at the plate. That guy, 'Casey says' is sure making a Christian out of me. I'm praying every minute he's up at the plate that he doesn't get hold of one—He may not hit .300 at the plate, says Stengel, but he'll bat 1.000 at the gate and that's something.

Need Field Men

Followers of the high school track team believe the Tigers have a good chance in the Central Buckeye meet—There is an 'if' however, and that is 'if' Coach Herberholz can develop some stronger field event men before the loop meet—The Tigers will be truly tested next Tuesday at Chillicothe.

Might Lose a Cake

It seems that Columbus is set on its ball club with a bunch of young speed demons beating down the base paths—It's one thing to steal a base, but in order to steal one must first get on—We have a bet of a soft drink with Frank Lynch (guess what kind it is) that the Birds don't win half their games on the road trip which starts today.

Never Had Measles

Lou Smith, who writes plenty for the Cincinnati Enquirer, is firm in his belief that the Reds have the youngest team in the major leagues—"I learned yesterday," Smith writes, "that five of the first stringers have never had the measles.

Short Heads South

Harry Short, brother of Forrest, county auditor, is preparing to take his string of horses, about 16, of them to Lexington May 1—Harry wants to get in Kentucky so he'll have a good excuse to see the Derby—The usual number of race horse fairs from here will probably be at the track—Many have gone in other years, some seeing the race and others not—It must be that Kentucky air.

CONSTABLE SHOT AS PISTOL FALLS

WAVERLY, April 23—When his revolver dropped from his pocket and discharged, John McFarland, 35, constable, was killed Monday. McFarland's car stalled on a hill and when he got out and stooped over to put a stone under a wheel the revolver fell. He lived at Jasper.

Wins 26-Mile Run

John Kelley

Running 26 miles, 385 yards in two hours, 32 minutes and 7 2-5 seconds, John Kelley, above, won the 39th annual Boson marathon from an international field of 196 runners. More than 500,000 people along the course from Hopkinton to Boston saw the florist's helper in his endurance grind.

ALIBI TOO GOOD

CLEVELAND, O.—A "perfect alibi" failed to John Gilbert had to appear before Police Judge Jacob Stachel to answer charges of speeding 64 miles an hour down an east side street here. When a motorcycle policeman stopped Gilbert, the latter said he was taking his wife to a hospital. Huston sped ahead of the Gilbert car with siren screaming, clearing the way of traffic and pedestrians. At the hospital, attaches said Gilbert had made no reservation, doctors said nothing was wrong with Mrs. Gilbert, and Huston booked Gilbert for speeding.

'BIRDS' SELL TWO PLAYERS

Eddie Morgan, Who Refused to Sign, and Den Wetherell, Veteran Hurler, Go to New Orleans

COLUMBUS, April 23—Sale of Eddie Morgan, utility infielder, and Den Wetherell, right-handed pitcher, to the New Orleans Pelicans of the Southern Association was announced today by George M. Trautman, president of the Columbus Red Birds.

Morgan, counted upon as the Birds' regular first baseman at the start of spring training, had refused to come to terms with the local club. He insisted if he was to play minor league ball he would play it with the Pelicans. He is also a native of New Orleans.

Wetherell, due to an abundance of hurling prospects on the Red Bird mound staff, was sold in order to bring the pitching staff down to American Association requirements. He had been the property of the Flock for the past three years.

An unannounced sum of cash, expected to reach fair proportions, will be played by New Orleans for Morgan, who formerly played with Cleveland of the American League, and Wetherell, who has played with various minor league teams, being "loaned" by the Birds.

HUDLIN BLANKS LOOP CHAMPIONS

CLEVELAND, April 23—The Cleveland Indians, resting easily in second place, rolled home today for the first game of the 1935 American league baseball season in their own backyard.

The Indians left Detroit last night after defeating the champion Tigers, 5 to 0, in the first no-extra inning game the Tribe has played this year. Pitcher Willis Hudlin stepped to the mound in the first inning and when he stepped down at the end of the ninth, the mighty Tiger batsmen had collected a total of three puny hits and nary a run.

Joe Vosmik pounded out a home run with two mates on base in the third inning. Four runs were chalked up that inning before

Hale fanned. The final run of the game was scored when Vosmik drove out his third hit of the game—a double to the right field corner—in the eighth inning and scored on Hale's single. Tommy Bridges, usually a hoodoo to the Tribe, gave up 12 hits before retiring in favor of Sullivan in the ninth.

WARNING

THERE is only ONE self-balancing bowl made in America. It is the Challenger Anker-Holth. Don't be confused by misleading terms such as "self-centering," "balancing," etc. Here's how to tell—the discs are numbered, the bowl is NOT self-balancing; the bowl can be put together in only one way, it is NOT self-balancing; there are patches of solder inside the head, it is NOT self-balancing; it isn't an Anker-Holth, it is NOT self-balancing.

We GUARANTEE the Anker-Holth bowl to be SELF-BALANCING, we GUARANTEE it need NEVER be returned to the factory to be balanced. There is NO balancing department in the modern Anker-Holth factory.

Miss Louise Stoker of the local telephone exchange, was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Chofflin, last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Baum entertained Mrs. J. R. Noecker of Circleville, several days of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Parley Haffey of Canal Winchester were Sunday guests of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hain.

Miss Elizabeth Weaver, a teacher in the O. S. & S. O. Home at Xenia spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Weaver, in Walnut-twp.

A party for the sophomore class of Ashville high school, chaperoned by Mrs. Shirley Cooper, was held at the school auditorium Tuesday evening.

Charles Bock and sisters of South Bloomfield, have returned home after spending the winter in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ruhlweh and son, Lewis, and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Duvall, were the Sunday guests of the latter's son, Boyd Duvall and family in Columbus.

Mrs. Ola Forquer has had as her guest for the past two weeks her daughter, Mrs. Paul Ford and little daughter of Coal Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Doris Finney entertained their son, Lawrence O'Connor and family of Columbus, Sunday.

Mrs. Laura Walters entertained her son, Hartley Walter and daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Abbott of Columbus, Sunday.

Earl S. Hott is now employed by the Firestone Tire Company, near Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Alexander of Powell-st. had as their Sunday guests, Mrs. Blanche Hoover and daughter, Mrs. Henry Hohrer and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baker, son of Columbus, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Baker.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ashville W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. Anna Cordray on East-st. An all-day program was rendered and a nice luncheon was served at the noon hour. Lucy B. Price, county president and Mary Harpster, L. T. L. superintendent, both of Circleville were present and gave interesting talks on the work. Rev. T. M. Ricketts presented some timely remarks on the temperance movement. Some donations were received for the home and hospital at Circleville. The sessions were interesting throughout and fairly well attended.

Easter services at the U. B. church will be long remembered, not alone for the interesting program rendered but for the cash offering during the day amounted to $347. The leaders of all departments of the church are to be commended for the good work accomplished. In the evening a crowd testing the seating capacity of the church, witnessed an Easter pageant depicting the empty tomb and other incidents in the life of a crucified and arisen Saviour. The music was appropriate and well rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Beaver of Columbus were guests of Mrs. Sophia Briggs, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mithoff of Columbus, spent Sunday with Mrs. Sophia Briggs.

HEARTY AT 107

PARIS—The oldest woman in France is Madame Voignard, who claims 107 years. She has two daughters, one 84 and the other 80. Madame Voignard declares she has never watered her wine and even puts wine in her soup, following a provincial custom. She is not superstitious; her birthdays falls on the 13th.

Rural Homes Benefitted By Midland's Expansion

The Ohio-Midland Light and Power Company has energized the newly completed 12,000 volt line between Kingston and Laurelville. It was announced by G. H. Ayres, general manager of the company at Canal Winchester. This line constitutes another unit of the Company's series of projects to provide improved, uninterrupted service to its 4,500 customers and to extend its service where necessary.

This three-year program, together with regular operating expenses, has thus far cost the company over three-quarters of a million dollars.

25 Worked 8 Months
The first step in the program was the rebuilding of the 50 mile 30,000 volt transmission line which feeds out of the Piquette power plant to Canal Winchester on one end and the United States Veterans' hospital and reformatory at Camp Sherman on the other end. This project required the services of 25 men working for eight months at a cost of $125,000.

The line was rebuilt in three sections: Piquette to Camp Sherman, Piquette to Rees, and Rees to Canal Winchester. As the rebuilding had to be done with practically no interruption to service, the new line was constructed parallel to the old line, which was torn down after the new line had been energized. Part of the 12,000 volt distribution line and the company's private telephone line, being on the same poles with the transmission line, had to be rebuilt at the same time. New poles, crossarms, and insulators and larger size wire were required on this rebuilding project.

During this period of construction, maintenance costs on the feeder lines amounted to $50,000, keeping the regular line crew of 15 men busy most of the time.

Within the last two months a new 12,000 volt distribution line has been built from Kingston to Laurelville at a cost of $13,000. Branches off this line serving the villages of Holtsville and Whistler will cost $9,000. This line was installed so that the villages of Laurelville, Adelphi, Amanda, Tarenton, and Stoutsville would obtain the greatly improved quality of electric service that has been brought to the remainder of the company's territory.

Served from Millers
Previously this district was served from the Ashville substation on a 6900 volt distribution line. Under the new arrangement Stoutsville, Oakland and Amanda will be served from the Miller substation several miles south of Circleville, bringing the transmission line ten miles nearer to these villages and improving voltage conditions.

Laurelville, Adelphi, and Tarenton are now being served from the new 12,000 volt line out of Kingston. New transformers and switching and protective equipment have been installed at the Kingston and Miller substations.

"Doublecrossed"?

It's Wall Street legend that Bernard "Ben" Smith is the biggest and most successful present day speculator, who makes fortunes for friends by letting them in on "good things." But "friends" who preceded him to witness stand in Senate buildings' traffic inquiry charged he "doublecrossed" them on deal for New York Shipbuilding Co. control. He denied it to committee.

to take care of this added load, and these substations are now ready to supply three times the amount of the present load in this district.

J. C. PENNEY COMPANY, Incorporated

Rural Homes Benefitted By Midland's Expansion

The Ohio-Midland Light and Power Company has energized the newly completed 12,000 volt line between Kingston and Laurelville, it was announced by G. H. Ayres, general manager of the company at Canal Winchester. This line constitutes another unit of the Company's series of projects to provide improved, uninterrupted service to its 4,500 customers and to extend its service where necessary.

This three-year program, together with regular operating expenses, has thus far cost the company over three-quarters of a million dollars.
